11. List the classes/units you studied during your placement *

Please include the unit codes if possible

Fall: MATH 401A Symbolic Logic, MATH 422 Advanced Applied Mathematics, MATH 511A Algebra, MATH 520A Complex Analysis MATH 523A Real Analysis, MATH534A Geometry/Topology

Spring: MATH 492 Independent Study (With Dr C Douglas Haessig), MATH 520B Complex Analysis, MATH 523B Real Analysis

12. Specify any classes/units you WOULD recommend to students to study and the reasons why *

Please include the unit codes if possible.
If you do not have any recommendations please input N/A.

MATH 401 Symbolic Logic – 401A Is similar to the "Logic" Course offered in TB2. The notes are prepared nicely and the midterms are of suitable difficulty. 401B would be about modal logic, for which I sadly can't take because the lecturer decided to go on a research break. The lecturer did a good job of delivering and answering the materials though, so still recommended.

MATH 492 Independent Study – Highly recommended, it prepares you for the master thesis that is required when returned to Bristol. You also have a lot of freedom to choose how many credits it takes (1-5 credits, with approximately 1 hour of work expected per credit per week), and do a write-up / in-depth investigation on a topic that you are interested in.

MATH 511 Algebra (A and B) – A full-year sequence on graduate-level (US) algebra. Course content is similar to "Algebra 2" offered in Year 2 TB2, and "Galois Theory" offered in Year 3 (Master Level course) TB2 combined. The lecture's pace is easy to follow, and the homework load is very manageable. The lessons also are motivated to introduce (but not go deep into) some deep connections between different research subjects, which I like.

MATH 520 Complex Analysis A – 520A is similar to "Complex Function Theory" offered in TB1. The presentation style of the content is done very fluently, and the proofs are not tedious but rigorous enough to follow. The course also allows me to gain deep intuition into the subject.

MATH 523 Real Analysis (A and B) – 523A and B are similar to "Measure Theory and Integration" and "Functional Analysis" from TB1 and TB2 respectively. The lecture is very organized and easy to understand. The homework is challenging yet very rewarding, and it is deeply woven into the course content, which really helps me to see the connections between various topics presented. There is also a section on Topology, which helps a lot as there is no course on Topology in Bristol.

13. Specify any classes/units you WOULD NOT recommend to students to study and the reasons why *

Please include the unit codes if possible.
If you do not have any recommendations please input N/A.

MATH 422 Advanced Applied Mathematics – A course about ODE and how to solve them. Almost all homework are computation problems, and they can get boring really fast. I also don't think it is an inspiring course. The early course time (8 am) also does not help.

MATH 534A Geometry/Topology – A course serves as an introduction to differential geometry. Similar to the "Geometry of Manifolds" unit offered in year 4 TB1. The lecturer did not do a good job explaining new concepts, rather, he used more complicated constructs to introduce a new notion, which makes the subject more confusing. Moreover, the contents are similar to the aforementioned course, so it is more beneficial to take it in year 4.

14. Do you have any academic related recommendations or further comments for future Bristol students going to the same host university abroad? *

Please include for example:
- any useful websites or sources of information you used to research your classes.
- any useful websites or sources of information to minimise the cost of buying text books etc.
- anything you wish you knew about the academics at your host destination before you went abroad.

If you do not have any recommendations please input N/A.

To research courses, usually typing the course code and course name and "University of Arizona" will get you some course syllabus and homework for a particular year. I found them quite accurately reflect the courses' difficulty (the online resources you found might be slightly harder).

Courses in the US is highly dependent on the textbook (some homework problem is just quoting a question from the textbook), so it is wise to borrow it from the library from the start of the semester. If it is unavailable, do note that interlibrary loan options are available free of charge.

Do note that for almost all of the courses, the lecturer changes every year. And they have full autonomy over the syllabus. So, there is a chance the difficulty/course content changes drastically from year to year.

In order to register for graduate courses and independent study, there is some paperwork you need to fill in, remember to ask the advisor and math centre for details and fill them in before the deadline.

Courses are usually graded in letter grades instead of percentages. Also, homework will take up a lot of points for the final grade, this is very different to the usual syllabus in Bristol. That also would mean being prepared to expect more homework each week.

15. You may have experienced some online or remote teaching due to COVID-19 or other circumstances. Please give us any feedback of your experience. *

Please include any feedback on:
- Any obstacles you faced following online learning.
- Any best online delivery practices you hope to see when you return to Bristol.
- Any support available to you from your department at Bristol or your university abroad.

23. What are your accommodation recommendations or helpful tips for future Bristol students going to the same host university abroad? *

Please include any feedback on:
- the quality and price of the accommodation
- the location of the accommodation and the proximity to the university and other amenities
- the range of options available and the ease of sourcing accommodation abroad
- the social aspect of the accommodation
- any useful websites or sources of information you used to research or obtain your accommodation.
- any recommendations of where to live or where not to live.
- anything you wish you knew about accommodation at your host destination before you went abroad.

The quality of the dorms is acceptable, during my stay, the facilities work completely fine most of the time.

The location is very convenient, it is only a minute's walk away from the recreation centre (the gym), the math building, the library, and a 5-minute walk to the student union centre (where almost all the restaurants are)

Note that most options are available when choosing the dorm, but almost all single room option is not (the remaining one is very shady), so you will be placed in a double room with a very high chance. The official website for the University of Arizona accommodation is enough and detailed for research purposes, there are layout and floor plans so your decision is very informed

Extra curricular activities

24. How do you rate the overall extra curricular and social activities outside of your studies at your host university abroad (either in-person or virtually)? *

5 stars being the highest & best rating.
This includes any virtual activities made available to you during your placement.

25. Do you have any recommendations for extra curricular activities, society/sports groups and/or places to travel to? *

Please include your feedback on:
- the quality, cost and availability of extra curricular activities (in-person or virtual)
- how you found integrating at your university abroad
- how you found making friends during your placement
- recommendations for places to travel (if applicable)

If you do not have any comments please input N/A.

One activity I absolutely recommend is the recreation centre and outdoor trips. With the fee that you paid when exchanging, the gym and pool is free of entry using your student card, and with a low-price add-on you can access all fitness class. This includes Yoga, Pilates, and a functional training called F45. The coaches are friendly and helpful. The gym is also full of equipment and a bouldering wall. It is a nice way to keep active.

I also recommend going on hiking trips with the outdoor recreation centre. They also regular trips to Grand Canyon in spring, so it is a good opportunity to make friends.

I also went to Los Angeles for a trip/conference, it is quite close (1.5 hours of flight) so I also recommend going there.

Student support

26. To what extent do you agree with the following statements? *

	Strongly agree	Agree	Disagree	Strongly disagree	N/A
Orientation at my host university was useful and helped me to integrate.	○	○	○	○	◉
I found it easy to get support with administrative matters at my host university (e.g registration, unit selection etc.)	○	◉	○	○	○
I found it easy to get support from the International office / Exchange office at host university when I needed it.	○	◉	○	○	○
It was easy for me to find out about and/or access wellbeing support at my host university, if I needed it.	○	○	○	○	◉
I felt supported by my host university to find accommodation and deal with any related issues.	○	○	○	○	◉
I felt supported and informed by my host university when applying for my visa (if applicable).	○	◉	○	○	○
On the whole, the professors and academic staff at my host university were approachable and supportive.	◉	○	○	○	○

33. Do you have anything else you want to share? *

This can include comments or feedback about the service or support from Global Opportunities (Go Abroad) and/or from your academic department.

I do recommend buying a meal plan because there are very few cooking utensils in dorms, and eating out in the US is must cheaper than in the UK. Note that there are also all-you-can-eat restaurants in the honours village (which is about 15 minutes walk away from most of the dorms)

34. Last but not least, please summarise your study abroad experience in one or two sentences.

By sharing your testimonial here you are agreeing to the use of your words in University of Bristol promotional media, worldwide, without restriction and in any format. Examples include: prospectuses, leaflets, posters, newsletters, websites, social media and promotional videos

Studying abroad allows me to study more intensively in a completely new environment, it also prepares me for my career as I prepare for my postgraduate. I would highly recommend anyone to pursue this rewarding experience.
